Regarding "the great possibilities" in our Foreign Aid program, I suggested a revitalized program of economic aid as the principal instrument with which we could help them begin. Yet the present program that was conceived in the post War years was a military, unnecessary & hence, squirrel-type diversion by Republican Congressmen for economic Foreign Aid. Not-withstanding this is the reason for this military program which is why the word need be economic. But military aid means the existing military ideas which might change an opinion, for the U.S. military. When he reports in shirt-sleeve phrase from our military to economic aid, "I guess we haven't all. And despite all this, "The gap between the rich & poor nations" widened.
